

INTERNATIONAL DOCTORATE IN TRANSLATION STUDIES (ID-TS) SELECTION ROUND 2017

The International Doctorate in Translation Studies (ID-TS) will be a worldwide network of existing doctoral Translation Studies programs or doctoral programs that include a Translation Studies component which have their institutional home at research-training institutions. The scope of the network shall not be limited to Europe and shall concern Translation Studies in a broad sense, including research on written translation, interpreting, audiovisual translation, localization and adaptation. The chief aim of the network is to achieve international cooperation in the field of doctoral education in order to promote higher quality in student recruitment, program content and delivery, research design, publication of research, and mobility and placement. These aims and the activities of the network are specified in the ID-TS Foundation Document.

We invite institutions and programs to apply for admission to the ID-TS network. Membership will be valid for five years. The full application must be in English, although supporting documents may be in the original languages.

An ID-TS application dossier should be sent by February 15, 2017 at the latest in PDF format by email to

est.idts@gmail.com

Before filling in the application form, please read carefully the Guide for Applicants. The guide contains detailed information on the eligibility and selection criteria, and on how to fill in the different parts of this form.
